

INDOOR TRACK MEET PLANNED FOR THE VARSITY

First Event of Kind Ever Held in New Mexico May Be Pulled Off Early in the Spring.

Tucked away in one corner of the U. N. M. Weekly for this week is the modest announcement that Coach "Hutch" is planning an indoor track meet for Albuquerque. This is welcome news indeed. Mr. Hutchinson is a track coach of no mean experience, and an indoor meet here in the spring months would certainly draw a crowd. Such a meet would come just at the end of the basketball season when people were ready to tire of that almost eternally popular sport, and wanted something new.

If it were made an open handicap meet, a large number of entries would be assured. There are several former track stars in the city who no doubt would go into training again for the sake of helping to start the meet off well. No doubt the Agricultural college would enter a few men, or possibly a team, and the Indian school could be counted upon to take home several blue ribbons.

The project is one which universally any will work up if the coach will take the initiative, and there are enough lovers of the track in Albuquerque to support the scheme right up to the bitter end. It has been several years since the university took any part in track or field events, and an indoor meet would serve as an admirable work out for the track material there is up there.

Hutch to Coach Basketball.
The good news that R. F. Hutchinson, who made a football team for the university out of scanty material, and then had it shot in the back by heavier teams, is to remain here for the basketball season, and possibly as permanent athletic director of the college on the hill, has been officially promulgated and varsity basketball men are correspondingly rejoicing.

"Hutch" is some three with the basketball stints, and he said to be a crackjack at baseball and track events. The students are much interested in keeping him here as director, and will make a special effort to secure his services permanently.

The quicker a cold is gotten rid of the less the danger from pneumonia and other serious diseases. Mr. E. W. L. Hall of Waverly, Va., says: "I firmly believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be absolutely the best preparation on the market for colds. I have recommended it to my friends and they all agree with me." For sale by all dealers.

JOHN M. KENDRICK SUCCEUMS TO A LONG ILLNES

Bishop of New Mexico and a Pioneer in Church Work,
Passes Away After Lingering
Since September.

After an illness which began in September and which has at times seemed about to relax its hold upon him, Right Rev. John Mills Kendrick, Episcopal bishop of New Mexico, and for 22 years a pioneer church worker in the state, passed away Saturday.

The death of Bishop Kendrick will be greatly regretted all over the country, for he was known far and wide among the churchmen, but especially in New Mexico and Arizona, for in these states he had made his principal field of effort.

Bishop Kendrick first came to New Mexico in 1889, being the first bishop sent to the southwest by the general convention of the Episcopal church. He came as a missionary bishop, and accomplished results, in view of the wild condition of the country at that time and the lack of transportation facilities, which were little short of marvelous. He made Albuquerque his home for a time, but later removed to Phoenix, where he lived until 1910, when the territories were made into separate dioceses. At that time he elected to remain New Mexico and West Texas as his field of endeavor, and another and younger man took over Arizona. Because of his wholesome presence and generous broad-mindedness Bishop Kendrick was beloved of all who met him. He was a welcome guest in every home, and found close friends among those of other denominations than his own. Not only Episcopalians but others will regret his passing with a deep and abiding regret.

The funeral services of the late bishop will be held tomorrow in Phoenix. Archbishop W. E. Warren of this city left Saturday night to attend them.

Bishop Kendrick was 74 years old and leaves a wife, who is critically ill in California, and a daughter, said to be very ill at her home in Phoenix.

LITTLE EXCUSE FOR THE CLANSMAN

A Theme Better Left Untouched
in Anything But an Artistic Manner.

Thomas Dixon has given as his excuse for writing "The Clansman" that it is intended as an answer to "Uncle Tom's Cabin." It is not a sufficient excuse. The argument, that Uncle Tom's Cabin is a libel on the south and does a cruel injustice to her people. The conditions which led to the writing of Mrs. Stowe's book, however, have long since passed, and the results which it achieved form a part of our national history which is far better forgotten, at least by the present generation. Reconstruction was horrible, and that very fact is the strongest reason why its scenes should not be enacted upon the stage to arouse the passions and prejudices of men who should be and are striving to build up a reunited country which shall know no sectional lines.

In dramatic and literary construction "The Clansman" is still less worthy than as a discussion of historical incidents. It is crude—very crude. The author has assayed the role of a dramatic surgeon undertaking to dissect a most delicate social and racial problem. Instead of a scalpel he has wielded an ax. Except for the undoubted interest which is felt in its subject and the vast amount of very clever advertising which it has received, the play would long since have worn itself out on the ten-twenty-third circuits, where it belongs.

The company which presented "The Clansman" at the Elks' theater Saturday night did very well, considering. The duty that lay before them was to keep the audience harrowed up all the while, and with the aid of creepy scenic effects and music suited to the occasion, they performed their duty admirably. It must be added, however, that in the discharge of that duty they were not required to call into play any dramatic ability to speak of. Incidentally, it is worth mentioning that the greatest opposition to "The Clansman" as a dramatic production has come from the south, where the problem with which it deals is most acute; and it is greatly to the credit of the southern people that they are so strongly averse to the intrusion of and influence which, like "The Clansman," is designed to aggravate, rather than to allay, the trouble with which they are confronted.

SANTA CLAUS WILL CAMP ON JOB IN ESTANCIA VALLEY

Land Has Produced Abundant
Crops This Year and Farmers
Are Prosperous; Happy
Christmas Anticipated.

(Special Correspondence to the Herald)
Willard, N. M., Dec. 18.—Few indeed are the settlers in the Estancia valley that do not this year welcome the approach of the Christmas season.

As the years come and go in this dry farming region, 1911 might be called a "tag" year. The rainfall was above the average, and the crops raised were by far the best the land has produced during the five years that the homesteaders have been here.

Santa Claus will be able this year to visit perhaps every child in the whole valley. This time, at the homes where there are many little fellows he has but few toys to leave, but still since this will be the occasion of his first visit since many have moved to New Mexico, whatever the good saint leaves will bring much joy.

Perhaps among all the merchants in the valley those at Estancia are showing the largest display of Christmas things. After the sorrowful Christmas spent there last year, because of the destruction of so many business houses by fire, the other merchants of the neighboring towns are not envious of the patronage the county seat people are receiving.

Several entertainments are being planned for the holiday weeks here. Next Sunday evening under the supervision of the teachers of the public schools there will be a tree at Herndon's hall, and an evening of jolly good fun for every child in the valley that can get there.

The church people will not have a tree this year, but announce a treat for all the children of the Sunday school.

George Alter and Tony Stanton will give a dance on Christmas eve that will be something like. There is to be plenty of frolic in the way of decorations and dance music. A big crowd from Estancia and quite a few of the dancing contingent from Belton have sent word that they will be here.

The Ladies' Aid will also break in on the good times with an evening's entertainment December 27, in the nature of a pumpkin pie social.

Jack McKinley and John Chastain have purchased the Peterson automobile and will move the garage to Willard this week.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Burwell have taken over the Willard Record for a while. The Burwells are quite an addition to the town. Both are college people and Mrs. Burwell is an instructor of considerable ability.

Her mother was a cousin of Benito Juarez, the Mexican liberator. Mr. Burwell, during his residence in the Sunflower state, was a member of the editorial staff of the Kansas Magazine.

Miss Nellie Seams will come over from Albuquerque Friday evening to be here during the holiday season as the guest of her friend, Miss Florence Meaux.

Arthur Higgs has reopened the skating rink in McCarley's hall. Mrs. Tony Stanton and children will spend Christmas with her sister, Mrs. Meyer, at Albuquerque.

Dr. Pope, preacher of the Union church Sunday evening. He is an itinerant Baptist preacher and was accompanied by his wife. The Papes are well known through this section of the state, as they have been traveling about preaching the gospel in New Mexico for twenty years. They do most of their traveling overland and carry a camp outfit with them.

"I had been troubled with constipation for two years and tried all of the best physicians in Bristol, Tenn., and they could do nothing for me," writes Thos. E. Williams, Middleboro, Ky. "Two packages of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets cured me." For sale by all dealers.

NIGHT RIDERS AT THE ORPHEUM

Moving Pictures Show Clan in Thrilling and Startling
Scenes in West Tennessee.

The story of the "Night Riders," which will be shown at the Orpheum theater tonight, portrays all the thrilling and horrible phases of the deeds of the clan, with the scenes laid in West Tennessee, and the complete story of their inception is shown till the time of the undoing of the band when the state took up the work after the murder of Captain Rankin near Reelfoot lake, putting the organization out of existence and imprisoning the leaders.

There are many strong scenes presented, giving one a clearer idea of existing conditions in Tennessee and Kentucky when the tobacco growers were in the thick of their fight, and picturing the horrors of that time. Garret Johnson, the chief; the Queen of the Night Riders and the clan at their meeting places in the thick of the woods are among the most important scenes shown.

Principal characters introduced by stereopticon slides and a lecture by an ex-Night Rider.

FOREST SERVICE IS ERECTING FIRE TOWERS

Assistant District Forester R. Rogers returned this morning from a stay of several weeks in the Arkansas and Oklahoma national forests. He reported forest conditions very good there, and stated that the erection of a number of fire protection towers had been started in both forests.

These towers will be of steel, in the case of the Arkansas forest, and will have a height of sixty feet. They will in all cases be located on the top of the highest hills in the vicinity, and will be connected by telephone with the supervisor's office. Each one will be provided with a compass and dial arrangements similar to a transit for the purpose of locating fires. Any two stations having telephoned the bearing of a fire to the central office, it is a mere matter of a few seconds to lay out on a scale map of the forest the lines indicated, and so locate the fire.

In the Ozark forest the towers are not so high, and are of wood. As in the case of the Arkansas, they are telephone equipped.

PERSONALS.

Edward McGuire, the tea magnate, returned last night from a three weeks' visit to his desert claim in California, fifty miles from the Colorado river, in the vicinity of Parker, Ariz. Mr. McGuire says that development work in the desert country is slow, but that claims will eventually become valuable property.

H. Scott Knight, expert auctioneer, has gone to El Paso, where he will remain for a week assisting in the disposal of a $20,000 stock of jewelry at auction. The Albuquerque auctioneer will be in competition with two crack southern auctioneers who have also been engaged for the occasion. It is a safe bet, however, that Scott will sell as much jewelry during the week as his colleagues.
